The Corr Ranch Vision Statement

We believe every person is a worthwhile individual made with qualities that are designed to reflect God, and created for good works that will demonstrate honor to God & His purpose. We believe no action is without consequences or merit. The City of Refuge Ranch (CORR) is a community of forgiveness, and an environment that utilizes many types of skill learning to help individuals strive for accountability and excellence in all they do.

We believe paroled men need an environment where they can live and work in a safe place, away from society where they can examine their personal issues, and have opportunities to learn to make healthy choices & become productive, law-abiding citizens.

We believe that not until the Lord Jesus Christ becomes the focal point & source of strength for men entering the parole process, will there be balanced & lasting recovery from fear & addictions, and progress toward personal integrity and the development of healthy relationships.

We also believe these paroled men need to be loved. Many turned away from love long ago; many never were cherished or wanted at all. Many lost their family unit while teenagers & were drawn to the streets. Some were abused or molested and have lost the ability to trust people. This deep pain & rejection hinders their progress in everything. They need to go to the ranch & be loved for a while. They need acceptance, respect, responsibilities, accountability & success.
